Essay #1

The Red Witch Scare

^{Who? How many?}
~~For many~~, the Crucible by Arthur Miller, ~~is~~ an allegory ^{to} the Red Scare or McCarthyism, which took place from 1947 to 1957, but for the ~~Author~~ of the Crucible, ~~it~~ may have been something completely different.

^{? What?}
The Red Scare was the over statement of the Communist power in the United States of America. Trials ^{after} ~~upon~~ trials ^{occurred} ~~took place~~ ^{against accused} ~~during to find~~ the Communist traitors, but many ~~found~~ ^{who?}

^{what?} problems with these trials, just as John Proctor did in the Crucible. To find Communist spies, men and women were brought to the courts attention and if you ^{they} were convicted of being a communist, ^{they} you were to be Black listed. Many Hollywood Actors, Screen writers, and Directors were ostracized during the Scare. The only way one was ^{Red} ~~to not be~~ Black listed was ^{able to avoid being} ~~to accuse another person of being a communist, and~~ "You are either with this court or against it, there is no in-between" ^{incorrect} (Hawthorne, Crucible Act three). If you were to deny any accusations and not accuse someone ~~and/or oppose~~ the court, you were blacklisted ^{whither} or not you had been accused.

^{concerned with small matters}
In a small society that is based upon social status, many happenings can and will get blow out of proportion. Take a school for example. One group says something bad about another and within a week, and in many cases less the entire school is at each others throats. In all cases
